

1/30-31/26

Johann Ravindranathan

(schandler Jensen)

Field sketch

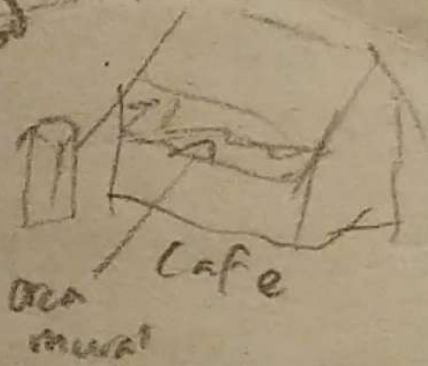

(observation: ~1 hr 30 min)

- We walked in Ballard, Seattle from the Carl S. English Botanical Garden and Ballard Locks, east to 24th Ave NW, and north up to the Ballard Community Center (lot of geese at the Botanical Garden)
- NW Market St was busy and active up to and east of 26th Ave. West of there it quieted down significantly
- Sidewalks everywhere were large and prominent, plenty of space to walk even with crowds
- Away from NW Market St, everything was usually quiet and peaceful, people seemed relaxed on the street
- Most personal vehicles are smaller to medium sized, with a few pickups. I didn't see any large SUVs or sedans, and not many pickups
- There was construction on 24th and 28th ave (I think it was Borer drilling machinery)
- I didn't capture this well in the field sketch, but this section of Ballard has big visual variety. Brick buildings and modern construction. Tall multi-storeys and lower buildings. Apartments and single homes. New and old properties. There was lots of color variety even within the same building, no onslaught of grey or barren facades. We saw at least 3 large murals of orcas, a diver, and an octopus(?)
- We also saw at least 4 art sculptures on the sidewalks, and a long row of art+sculpture businesses near the Nordic Museum
- Because of the larger gaps between NW Market St. pedestrian crossings, there were many jaywalkers

Ballard Prototype 2

19 pole

Brick mender building red helping box

Oca mural

Palm tree

Orcas

Locks

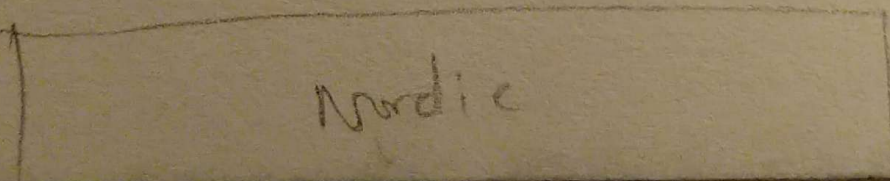

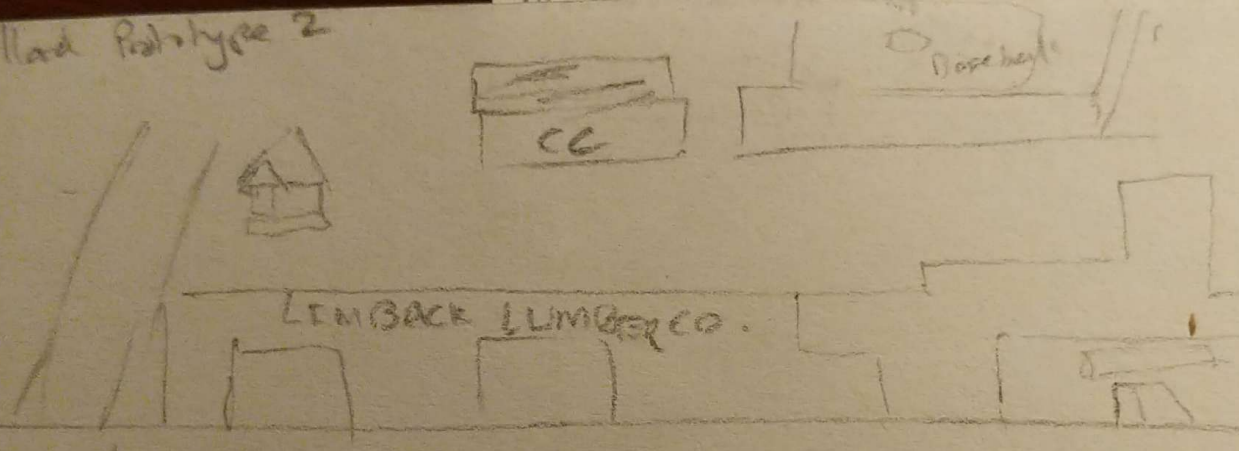

of orcas, a diver, and

Ballard Posttype 2
 in park
 Rainwater Brick house building red maple birch cafe
 mural

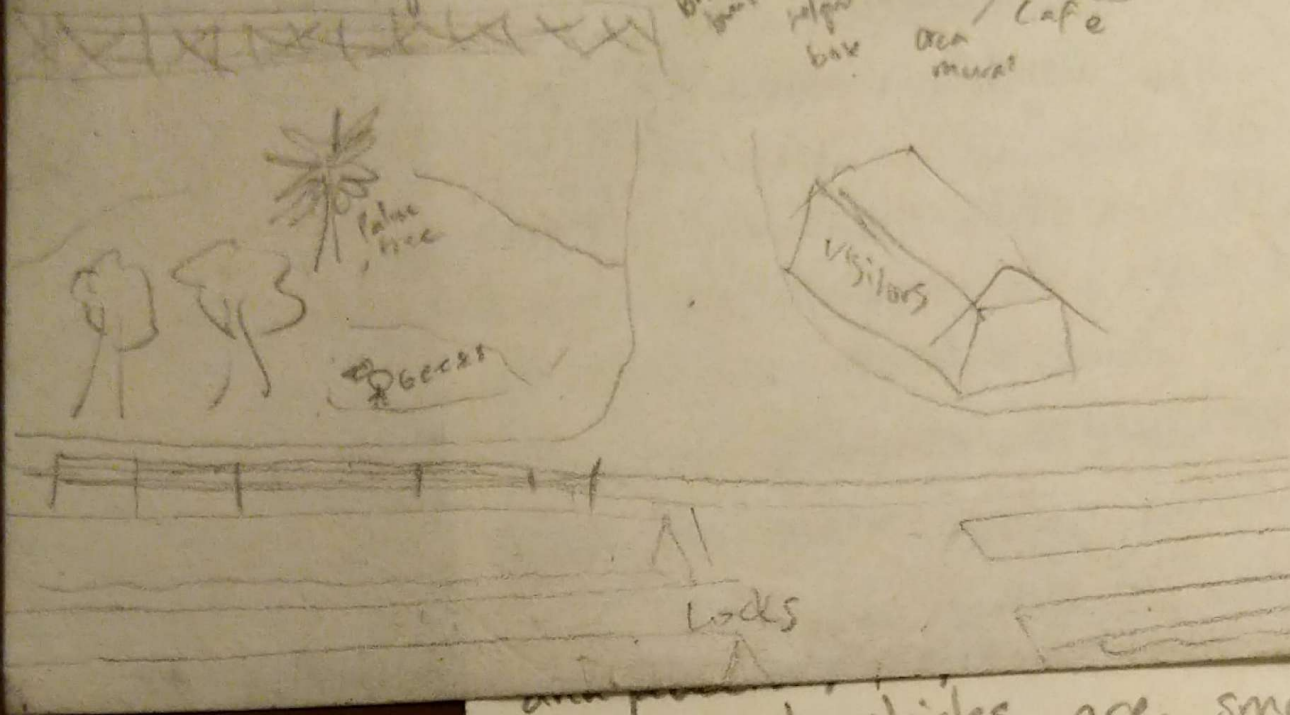

Most personal vehicles are smaller to me a few pick-ups. I didn't see any large

Ballard Posttype 2

Ballard Bridge 2

• Most personal vehicles are small and a pickup I didn't see

Ballard Bridge 3

